

STEVE CANNON

My work is deeply inspired by the rhythms of nature, which embodies the balance between change and continuity. In nature, the passage of time unfolds seamlessly—the sun rises and sets, seasons change, and life cycles continue. This natural progression mirrors our human experience, where moments of unexpected loss coexist with enduring legacies.

In observing wildlife, particularly elephants, I see this balance play out vividly. When an elephant passes, its legacy continues through its offspring, who follow the same trails and visit the same waterholes. This continuity amidst change is a powerful reminder of the cycles that shape both the natural world and our own lives.
